Technical topic and debate – Competent in whose opinion?

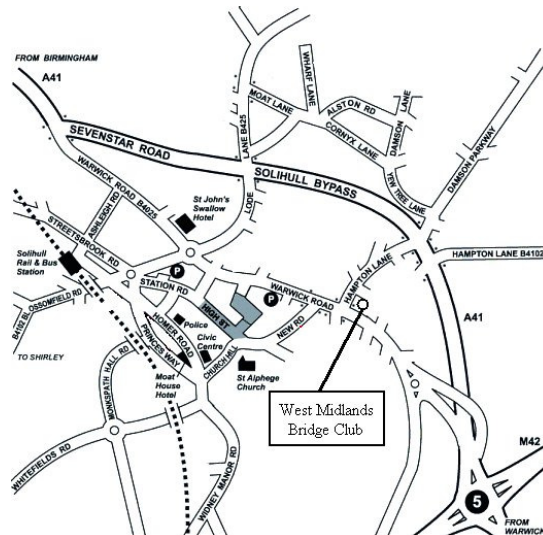

(Harry Hopkins will be leading and opening the debate.)
(Sponsored by HH Risk)

Summary

Competence discussions are all around us and new schemes keep popping up. Can we define what is competent for professional safety/ reliability professionals? What makes us competent? How do we demonstrate it? How can we measure it- or should we even try?

Competence is an ongoing topic in the Society and in organisations the Society is represented on.

It is an ideal subject for discussion because it matters to us all and there are no simple ways of dealing with it, so let us have your views whether they are well founded, revolutionary or anything else.
